

Winter Driving Seminar

Background

This course is a classroom based interactive seminar designed to be both enjoyable and educational for up to 25 delegates at any location in the UK. The role of the presenter is to provoke thought, stimulate discussion and generally act as a catalyst in order to raise both personal and corporate awareness. The seminar will explore individual knowledge relating to driving in winter conditions as well as illustrate the risks that people take on the roads. Drivers will learn how to read the changing conditions and adapt accordingly.

Objectives

- To provide individuals with an insight into the underlying causes of road accidents
- To help drivers to prepare for driving in challenging conditions
- To provide a forum for individuals to discuss their own experiences and attitude to winter conditions
- To analyse the relationship between defensive driving techniques and economical driving
- To identify areas where individuals are most at risk on the road
- To illustrate risk situations with real-life case studies

Topics

Each seminar is unique and utilises both individual and collective experiences from within the group to achieve the stated objectives through the following approaches:

- Presentation
- Syndicate groups
- Open discussion
